Executive Summary

Task analyses were conducted for the RedCross.org website. For these analyses, six processes were deconstructed to identify areas where streamlining and optimization could occur:

1. Apply for a Job
2. Buy a Product
3. Volunteer
4. Tell Your Story
5. Register for a Class
6. Submit a Request for Emergency Communication

Notable improvements in the processes included:

- Consolidating the 'Apply for a Job' process into two pages.
- Allowing users to add job profiles to a list of favorites for easy retrieval during the job application process.
- Editing content for greater clarity and scannability.
- Collapsing formatting instructions for form input under a question mark icon. This creates a cleaner presentation for forms and enhances scannability.
- Hiding fields dependent on particular inputs until those inputs have been received. This removes the potential for users to enter information in an input field that is not applicable to them.
- Using radio buttons instead of drop-down menus whenever possible. This allows the list of options to be visible at a glance and minimizes the number of required clicks to make a selection.
- Using checkboxes instead of 'yes' and 'no' radio buttons. With this format, users can decide to check the box or simply leave the box unchecked.
- Reducing the size of the images at the top of the body section on main pages. This allows the page content to be situated closer to the top of the page, allowing users to locate task more quickly and efficiently.
- Removing search filtering options that are rarely used.
- Including 'back' buttons on each page of the checkout process. This makes it easier for users to navigate to the previous step.
- Displaying options to sign in or create an account on the same page of the process where the account information is required. Once users sign in or create an account, they are automatically directed to the next step in the process.

This report outlines the steps involved with the current tasks as well as the steps involved with the redesigned tasks. The task outlines are followed by a list of changes made to the interface.

Storyboards were also created to accompany the reconstructed tasks, showing the various screens as users move through the redesigned tasks. Automatically generated content, such as lightboxes, or prompted fields is surrounded by a dashed border.

Apply for a Job – Interface Changes

- Used hidden fields and generated content, the entire process was consolidated into two pages: 'Search Jobs' and 'Create a Profile'
- Edited content for greater clarity and scannability
- Removed search filters that are unlikely to be used
- Enlarged and repositioned more useful search filters to draw more attention to them
- Made search filters entirely optional
- Provided a Google map to streamline location searches and increases user interaction
- Enlarged, simplified, and condensed form inputs
- Used hidden fields that appear responsively to user inputs
- Provided a 'Favorites' list to store jobs of interest as users search, like a shopping cart
- Maintained access to that favorites list during application process
- Provided question-mark icons next to form fields which users can click on for formatting instructions, saving space and creating a cleaner presentation

Buy a Product – Interface Changes

1. For brevity and clarity, reduced filter options for viewing search results to one, based on price
2. Removed 'Quick Links' on products pages and used a lightbox to display all product description pages
3. Made all product categories available from landing page as well as local navigation menu
4. To better conform with user expectations, a 'View Cart' text link under the shopping cart icon replaces the 'Shopping Cart' link on the local navigation menu (link disappears once the user is in the checkout process)
5. Checkout process is consolidated into 4 steps: 'Login', 'Shipping', 'Billing', and 'Review'
6. Back arrows provided at each checkout step to allow easy and safe edits within the sequence (matching forward arrows should also be generated after a user has retreated a step)
7. Additional interface changes are consistent with those delineated in 'Apply for a Job'
